

A FIELD GUIDE, NOT A CV

The Search & How I Get Seen

For the next time I need reminding why I'm doing this.

WHY THIS EXISTS

Two years of enterprise work only I can prove.

Zero competitive interviews, ever.

This is how that changes.

PRODUCT DESIGNER • REMOTE • MID-LEVEL

MIDDLE EAST → ENGLISH-SPEAKING → ALGERIA

$600 FLOOR • $1,000–1,500 TARGET

01

Search & Apply

Where to look, and how not to waste time looking.

WHERE

- Middle East — LinkedIn beats the boards here; recruiters post before Bayt or Wuzzuf catch up. Remote Rocketship's ME feed covers the rest.
- Worldwide-remote — We Work Remotely, RemoteOK, Wellfound, Built In. More competition — apply within 48 hours of a posting.
- Algeria — LinkedIn + Emploitic. Backup only, not a first stop.

HOW

- Boolean search: “Product Designer” AND (“design system” OR “B2B” OR “SaaS”) — Remote, Entry to Mid-Senior.
- Alerts over daily scrolling. Nothing worth having disappears in a day.
- Skip “Senior” unless the years actually match — titles lie in both directions.

- 11–200 person companies move faster and care less about pedigree.

APPLY

- Lead with nadirdesign.com, not the CV.
- Match the opening line to the product type — name the closest case study.
- Three templates — ERP, SaaS, design-systems — never one for every role.
- “Portfolio review” or “take-home” in the post? Move it to the top of the pile.
- Track everything. Memory is not a system.

02

Network

Give before you ask.

SET UP ONCE

- Headline: Product Designer — B2B SaaS · ERP · Design Systems · Arabic/RTL.
- About: the Iksir numbers, the accessibility angle — the parts nobody else can say.
- Featured: nadirdesign.com pinned, two strongest case studies.
- Open to Work — recruiters only, never public.

EVERY WEEK

- Comment before connecting. Comment before DMing. Always in that order.
- Three to five real comments a day beats one clever one a week.
- Post what's already being lived — case notes, opinions on data-heavy design.
- Two weeks of visible presence before any DM. Let them recognize the name first.

THE DM

- Founders — open with something useful about their product. Not “I’m looking.” Let the opportunity come up on its own.
- Recruiters — direct is fine. One line of interest, one differentiator, one link.

03

Weekly Ritual

Five minutes, once a week. Check what's true.

- 5–10 new follows — founders, recruiters, design leads
- 15–25 comments, spread across the week
- 1–2 posts
- 2–4 DMs — only to people already spoken to
- Every reply logged

04

Stay Myself

The work proves the seniority. Not the title.

- Product Designer, everywhere. Not Senior, not Lead — the portfolio makes that case instead.
- Leadership is a fact about a project, never a claim about a title.
- Nawat is real, active work — never a fallback story, publicly or in a DM.
- No urgency, ever. “Open to the right thing,” not “I need this.”
- Every piece of advice given should hold up even if nothing comes back.

Come back to this every week.
Consistency is the whole strategy.
